(All the answers can be various by each person's own opinions. The checking points will be focused on how much they can show their abilities of "critical thinking" and "self-expression" in English.)

1. Do you agree with the opinion that whale hunting is the way to preserve the culture of Japanese food? Why?

From the viewpoint of socialization, people should develop an awareness of social customs and values. Through this process, a sense of personal identity is expected to be achieved. I think traditional food is one example: if you love eating some specific food, you can tell where you are from and who you are. Therefore, we should do efforts on keeping our own culture. It is really shameful to make it lost.

2. What do you think of some activist groups' attitude toward whale hunting?

I can understand their concern about the ecosystem, but I cannot accept their way of thinking on whale hunting. People around the world are doing fish business every day. All fishes should be treated equally. Why are the whales given the special treatment? I know that we should share some common senses with other people living in the world, but some traditional cultures and customs should be respected as well, if they are not harmful to others.

IV Look at the pamphlet. Complete the dialog in English. Write your answers on this answer sheet. Write neatly. You must write at least 150 words.

Chihiro: Hello, Hikaru. We made it, we graduated! What shall we do now?

Hikaru: Well, we always said we would take a trip together when we graduated.
Let's do it now. We have four weeks of holiday.

Chihiro: Okay, but where shall we go?

Hikaru: I think we should go to Iceland. It is interesting, and we can use our English.

Chihiro: Iceland? Hmm. Okay, but what can we do there?

Hikaru: I brought a pamphlet. Let's make a plan for our magical four weeks in Iceland.

Chihiro: It seems that Iceland is similar to Japan. There are hot springs, volcanoes, mountains and delicious seafood. Where shall we start?

Hikaru: Since we are going now, in February, the days will be short, but we can maybe see the Northern Lights. I think we should start our tour in the city of Reykjavik. Then we can go to the mountains and glaciers.

Chihiro: I would love to see the Northern Lights. They must be so beautiful! But I am worried about food. Will there be food that is suitable for us?

Hikaru: Look at the pamphlet. You can see that Iceland has very fresh seafood from very clean water. They also have fishing tours, and we could catch our own fish!

Chihiro: Okay, that sounds nice, but what about the cold?

Hikaru: Most places use geothermal heating, so the inside of buildings is nice and warm. You worry too much.

Chihiro: No, I don't. In fact, I want to try ice climbing. So, we stay in the city, and travel around, right?

Hikaru: Great, it's decided. I am really looking forward to it.
